TechByte: How big is that file or folder?

In Finder:

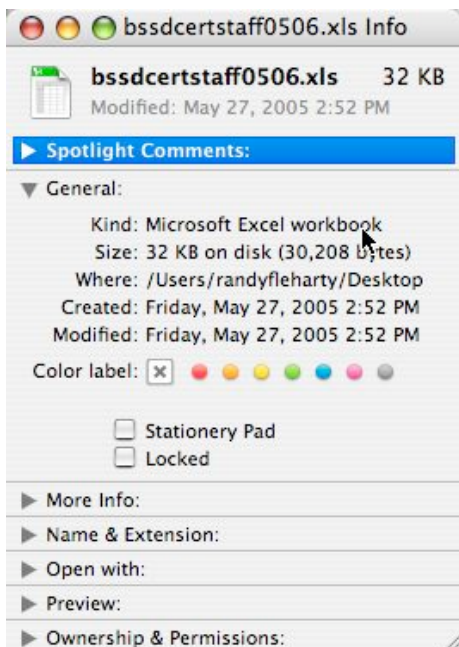

1) Locate the file or folder you want and click on it to highlight it (not double-click) and go to the file menu and Get Info or / -i.

2) The Get Info dialogue box opens and displays a plethora of information including the file or folder size in the General Section.

In email clients:

1) Most clients will show you the file size after you attach it to your email. This is a shot from Mac Mail:

There is a lot more information stored in the Get Info dialogue box. Check it out if you get a chance. Get Info can be a very useful tool for other troubleshooting (more on that later).
